

James Predicts Next 20 Years Most Distinguished For McGill

by BRUCE STOVEL

Where Did You Hide My Pants?

On Saturday afternoon in Redpath Hall at 3pm, the McGill Conservatory opera class of Edith and Luciano Della Pergola will present excerpts from "Faust", "Lucia", and "Fidelio". In the scene above from "Faust" are seen Ken Forjet (left) as Faust and Kenneth Asch as Mephistopheles. There is no admission for this one performance.

McGill's next 20 years will be the most distinguished period in her history, Dr. F. Cyril James predicted at a banquet held in Redpath Hall last night.

The banquet was the Annual General Meeting of McGill's Graduates' Society. The Society commemorated the twentieth anniversary of Dr. James' appointment as Principal and Vice-Chancellor of McGill by presenting him with an engraved tray at the meeting.

James reviewed the last twenty years in his speech and concluded by saying, "We have gone through the most revolutionary period in the history of McGill and of Canadian higher education, and, as a result, the next twenty years will be the most distinguished period in McGill's history."

TEAM CO-OPERATION

He began by reminding his listeners of the many who helped build the University in the last twenty years, and of the fact that "a university is the greatest form of team co-operation in the world".

He added that "there are men at a university to tackle every sort of problem in the universe" and that thus "a university's staff is relatively small compared to the work it does". As an example, he pointed out that the total number of people on McGill's payroll, from the groundskeepers up, is only 3,400.

NO LUXURY

James continued by mentioning the three specific events which have illustrated that "Canada has become conscious that higher education is not a luxury—not just something that is nice to have around". These events, he said, were "red-letter developments" in the life of McGill and other universities.

First, he maintained, was the federal charter of 1941 guaranteeing a free post-war education to veterans. By this document, Canada was the first country in the world to provide a university to veterans who were qualified to enter university or who could pass matriculations.

The $165 million spent by the Canadian Government between 1942 and 1953 educating veterans, James claimed, was "probably the best investment Canada has ever made".

HALF VETERANS

The great number of veterans who flocked to McGill starting in January, 1945 was so large, he stated, that in the peak year of 1946-47 veterans numbered about one-half of the 8,200 students at McGill.

This enrolment, he pointed out, is greater than that today, although there were then 40 per cent fewer teachers. However, he added that this gave those years "a sense of purpose" and that it is an academic commonplace that veterans were, on the whole, superior students.

The third milestone, James said, was the decision of federal government in 1951 to subsidize higher education as a result of the Massey Report. After much serious concern that the federal government would centralize control of education, he said, "legislation is now being enacted which will lay a new foundation for the development of Quebec's higher education in both English-speaking and French-speaking universities".

13 Women Run For Union Posts

The Womens' Union yesterday announced nominations for their coming elections to be held Friday, March 4. It has been disclosed that thirteen candidates, which is less than last year's 16, are contesting for election.

For the office of President, the following are nominated: Judi MacLean, Vita Land.

The position of Secretary will be filled by one of the following: Geraldine Sherman, Margaret Gavin, Anne Begor, Linda L'Aventure.

The 5th Member at Large, who will be Vice-President of the Students' Union, will be chosen from the following: Lilian Caplan, Anne Dixon, Marion Lazar, Linda Randal, Suzanne Gervan.

The position of Womens' Athletic Association is contested by Marion MacDougall and Barbara Gatehouse.

Panel Forsees Great Development For Africa In Next Few Years

by BILL HERSH

The highlight of African Week took place last night in the Union Ballroom in the form of a panel discussion on "Economic, Social and Political Development in Africa".

The five-member panel chaired by Dr. E.C. Knowles the Chaplain of McGill University, included Mr. D. Dove-Edwin, Educational and Cultural Attaché, Nigerian Liaison Office in Washington; Mr. R. Samples, D.S.O. Director of Information Services for the United Kingdom Government in Ottawa; Mr. J. Kroanteng, Educational and Cultural Attaché, Ghana Embassy, Washington; Professor K. Callard of McGill's Department of Economics and Political Science and Dr. Fincham, Deputy High Commissioner of the Union of South Africa in Ottawa.

INDUSTRIAL START

Dr. Fincham began the discussion, stating that the Union of South Africa was the most highly industrialized state south of the Sahara. Now celebrating its fiftieth anniversary, the Union boasts that its population has doubled since 1910.

Mr. Samples pointed out that this meeting was just one of many taking place all over North America. He believes that these discussions indicate the growing interest of the world in African affairs. The elections held recently in Nigeria are a final step towards the independence that nation will receive in October of this year.

The British policy in 1903 was "to guide colonial territories to responsible self-government in the Commonwealth." Since the second world war the number of people in Africa under direct British control has dwindled from 500 to 75 million.

PROGRESSION OF NIGERIA

The next speaker, Mr. Dove-Edwin reviewed the history of Nigeria. In 1849 the British government had stationed a government there and finally in 1923 the first legislative council was formed. Thus Nigeria has had 37 years experience in the parliamentary system. In 1946 Britain thought "the time had come" to consider complete self-government for Nigeria so the Nigeria governor drew up a constitution which was to be effected for a nine year trial. However, in 1951 the citizens were asked to make up a modified version of this constitution. All citizens helped in this effort and it was put into effect in 1952 — one year after the ministerial form of government had been adopted. All important posts in that country since then have been taken by Nigerians.

Mr. Kroanteng confined his remarks to the development of Ghana. The aim of the government of Ghana is "to cater to the necessities of the greatest majority". Economic development prior to independence was limited. Much money is being spent on economic projects of the country. Now there are good methods of transportation. Secondary schools have increased in number from 15 to 69. Four thousand students have gone to other countries to continue their education and Ghana hopes to build its own universities in the near future.

AFRICA IN GENERAL

Professor Callard decided to comment on Africa as a whole. "Africa has undergone incredible political development in the last three years. Before that almost all of Africa was under European power, and in the next few years vast areas will begin to rule themselves... People will begin to look toward their own legislators for aid." The national desire for independence is being created everywhere.

In the past 30 years Africans are getting away from tradition and changing for the better. "The problems are still there, however, they are not all being solved by the change of control. Most countries realize that self-government in Africa is self-evident".

ELECTION PLATFORMS

Candidates in forthcoming election should note the following word limits for combined platform and pensketch:

STUDENTS' SOCIETY PRESIDENT	350 words
PRESIDENT OF THE STUDENTS' UNION	200 words
WOMEN'S UNION PRESIDENT	200 words
STUDENT ATHLETICS COUNCIL CHAIRMAN	150 words
WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT	150 words
WOMEN'S VICE-PRESIDENT, STUDENTS' UNION	100 words
WOMEN'S UNION SECRETARY	100 words
UNDERGRADUATE SOCIETY PRESIDENTS	100 words

Words over the limit will be cut. Pensketches and platforms must be typed double-spaced, on one side only of the paper. Platforms must be signed by the candidate, while pensketches should bear the words "Committee for the Candidate" with the signature of one member of said committee. This signature will not be printed. Photo, head and shoulders only, should be glossy portraits and not snapshots.

Entries should be addressed to the News Editor, and left with George in the Union Tuckshop.

Please Specify

The breakdown of McGill's enrolment according to the religious denomination of its students, as published in yesterday's Daily, provides us with the perfect excuse for asking the University authorities a simple but pointed question, one which we have long wanted to ask. Why is one required to state his (her) religion when he (she) registers at McGill?

The ordeal at registration is familiar to everyone. You are told on several slips of paper to state your religion, after which the admonition—"please specify". Presumably the latter is directed to Protestants alone, in order that they will not forget to mark their particular denomination. But that is a presumption and not a fact; and in the meantime the general character of that admonition lends itself to varied interpretation.

That, however, is only a secondary issue. Why ask the question at all? What difference in the world could it possibly make what your religion is, and why embarrass people who do not profess any particular religion? Even if the purpose of asking such questions on registration forms is entirely innocent—and that is open to some question—why leave yourself open to charges and innuendoes? Some years ago, rumours that McGill practised a discreet policy of religious and racial discrimination, especially in some of its more prestigious faculties, were rather widespread. Whatever the truth of these rumours, and we are not competent to render judgment on that point, the plain fact is that the university would never open itself to such insinuations were it to decide simply not to inquire of each student or candidate for admission his or her religion.

Perhaps it is not too well-known that several states south of the border prohibit by law any public institution or organization from asking a prospective or actual member formally to state his religion. Perhaps this is too much to expect from the men who sit in high council in the Quebec Legislature. It is certainly not too much to ask of a university, in particularly a university that boasts of a great liberal tradition. We're personally convinced that McGill means no malice by its question on the registration forms; but that makes it all the more imperative that such questions be stricken, a move that would make the university absolutely immune to any potential accusation of religious bias or prejudice.

We must admit that we found yesterday's article very interesting reading, and that we consider ourselves considerably edified by the knowledge that McGill has one Confucian, four Plymouth Brethren, twenty-one Buddhists, etc. But we pay too high a price for such interesting tidbits.

Postgrad Society Must Justify Its Existence

Sir:
Please include us as another "group of obviously uninformed, apathetic graduate students" who have virtually never heard of the Postgraduate Student's Society. Some of us have heard that the Society has organized a postgraduate student's dance in each of the past several years: one of us actually knew about one year's dance before it had been held. Evidently all twenty-six of the notice-boards on which warnings of forthcoming Society functions are allegedly posted are in the Biology building.

The Postgraduate Student's Society is mentioned in the Announcement of the Faculty of Graduate Students and Research only with respect to the fact that registration fees include membership in the Society. The same sentence states that the registration fee also includes athletic privileges. Most graduate students know how each of these provisions has been interpreted in recent years.

If the Postgraduate Student's Society is to continue collecting a portion of the registration fee, it must justify its existence. Otherwise, to quote Schwenk, "they'll none of them be missed".

Souvenir-Hunters: Please Reconsider

Sir:
Three or more caps, belonging to West Point Cadets, were spirited away over the weekend, and the badge from yet another was neatly removed. This in itself sounds fairly amusing as they make novel souvenirs, but, to the cadets, the situation is not so funny. The penalty for losing a cap is serious... a Pointer has to buy another, at considerable expense to himself, and he also loses his rank—something for which he has worked hard for a long time.

We all enjoyed the Glee Club very much, and it seems a great shame that they should leave under such an onus. We would like to have West Point back again, but it will be hard to persuade them to come if it means losing their rank for the fun of one week-end.

Thus if anyone knows the whereabouts of these caps it would be very much appreciated if they would return them as soon as possible to George at the Union Tuckshop, so that we can send them on to West Point.

Westley Talks on Non-Conformity

Non-conformity is the problem facing today's youth, said Dr. William Westley, Chairman of the Sociology Department at McGill in a noon-hour lecture at Hillel on "Pressures Toward Conformity". He added that the attitude of "tolerance" held by many students may lead to a belief in nothing and to conformity to nothing.

Dr. Westley pointed out that conformity in the popular sense is fundamentally a negative term for standards which people oppose;

i.e. status symbols which are considered in bad taste. Dr. Westley believed this to be a mistaken notion. Rather he said conformity is an essential element in the development and maintenance of society. Men must agree on certain goals as the basis of human freedom, for a unity of law, language, etc., promotes a feeling of trust.

LESS CONFORMITY NOW

Dr. Westley disagreed with the popular opinion that due to mass media of communication, we conform more today than in the past. He cited the peasants of medieval Europe as a completely conformist society and declared that man is moving toward a greater freedom of ideas because of urbanization.

Four factors were cited as the basic pressures toward conformity: isolation, which creates a homogeneous society; organization, which controls man's actions; antagonism, caused by internal conflict within a society; and fear, from which grows personal conformity for the sake of security.

PROBLEM OF LIMITS

The speaker said that the problem of conformity is the problem of limits. The decision then is not between good and bad conformity, but between too much or too little conformity.

Knelman Warns Against Myth Of "Clean Bomb"

"The mythology of fallout is a product of the nature of our society", said Dr. Fred Knelman speaking to the Nuclear Studies Group in the Union Ballroom on Wednesday. "Our tremendous scientific revolution has far outstripped our development as human beings. There is a terrifying disparity between what our technology can do and what man can do with technology."

"In the nineteenth century it was possible for a young intellectual to withdraw completely from society; today we are all faced with the possibility of the same terrible end and withdrawal in meaningless."

Dr. Knelman outlined the origin of radioactive particles and explained the difference between fission (atomic) bombs, fission-fusion (hydrogen) bombs and super (cobalt) bombs. He described the extent of damage which the thermal blast of an explosion would create and the area the subsequent global fallout would cover.

The speaker distinguished between the somatic (damage to all body cells) effects of fallout and the genetic (damage to cells of reproductive organs) effects. He said that there could be no such thing as a "clean" bomb as various governments have claimed.

The so-called "clean" bomb is an enormous fission-fusion bomb which, if it does not release the products such as Strontium 90 which cause somatic damage, produces instead vast quantities of Carbon 14, which has a devastating genetic effect. The "threshold" is another myth, he pointed out. There is no minimum level for the safe absorption of Carbon 14, the smallest particle of which causes genetic damage.

At present the three-power disarmament conference is stalled on the question of the detection of subterranean atomic tests.

Thus we are faced with the possible resumption of tests at any moment and the further pollution of our atmosphere.

The discussion ended with a warning to the listeners that the men of today are forgetting their democratic heritage in a misguided obedience to the dictates of certain interest groups. It is the responsibility of the individual to protest against the threat of continued nuclear testing, Dr. Knelman concluded.

Folk Song Fest Presented Today

The Folk Music Society will hold its second and last concert of the year at Moyse Hall tonight at 8 pm. The hall was filled to near-capacity for the Society's first concert this year, and tonight's show is following the pattern set for the first concert, with a little more variety.

A number of guest groups will appear, doing acts and songs from Canada, the United States, and Great Britain. The Pharisees, The Sir George West Indian Society, and other singers will be featured.

Gerry Cohen will emcee the concert and tickets for the concert are on sale at the Union Box Office for $0.50.

Intramural Highlights

by ED BIERBRIER

Medicine copped the Ice Hockey Championship as they shutout the Shysters of Law 6-0 at the Winter Ice Carnival. Previously the teams played to a 0-0 draw, with the second game of the two game total point series being the rubber match. Dave Swales netted two goals while Ashworth, Butsch, Sullivan, and Turnbull each dented the twine for singletons.

INTRAMURAL AWARDS BANQUET

The intramural sporting scene reaches its climax on Thursday March 3 where awards are presented to honour the champions of the various intramural sports during the year. Chairman of the S.I.R.C. has called the dinner for 6 pm. He will be followed by Howie R. Ryan, Director of Intramural Athletics, who will give the opening remarks.

TURTLES, BLUES, FOOTBALL CHAMPS

The Turtle members are to receive the Howie Ryan Touch Football Trophy while the Blues of the junior league will be appropriately awarded as no trophy exists in their division due to the innovation of that league this year. Members of the Turtles include D. Tarr, M. Richards, B. Hutchison, M. Finklestein, S. Epstein, H. Bailly, and G. Halpern. Blues consist of M. Johanson, E. Hume, E. Culley, D. Taylor, B. Orr, E. Peterson, and N. Grunger.

DENTS VICTORS IN BASKETBALL, FLOOR HOCKEY

The Pluggers and D.T.'s were declared basketball and floor hockey champions. The Floor Hockey Trophy is due to be given to B. Johnson, J. Roberts, D. Maule, C. Casey, B. Fraser, R. Patton, M. Adams, M. McLelland, R. Hadawaki, P. Harasimowicz, B. Holmes, W. Tetnik, T. Steff, L. Konyk, K. Weaves, and B. Rankin, all members of the victorious D.T.'s.

The Graduate Society Trophy, symbolic of basketball supremacy, has been won by the Pluggers. The team is composed of John Roberts, P. Harasimowicz, T. Steff, A. Lacowitz, C. Stazaker, J. Reddon, P. Rankin, and W. Smallwood.

MEDS COP VOLLEYBALL, ICE HOCKEY

The SIRC Trophy for the top volleyballers have been won by Medicine. This teams ten men are D. MacKinnon, C. Hansen, J. Hsu, T. Farrell, T. Ashworth, F. Simmons, A. Wov, B. Tennis, P. Kelly, J. Weinberg. The Ice Hockey Trophy, the MUAA Trophy, is to be awarded to Medicine. Seventeen members of the hockey squad are D. Swales, T. Farrell, D. Merkel, J. Butsch, J. MacFarlane, T. Sullivan, F. Torrey, T. Turnbull, W. Graham, T. Ashworth, L. Higgins, E. Foulkes, B. Whitmore, B. Smith, W. Alexander.

TRACK AND FIELD... GOLF...

Charlie Hudson is the recipient of the Warren Hurd Memorial Trophy, and the Faculty of Engineering the Adams trophy. Individual award winners are M. Limonchik, R. Brown, P. Adams, R. McLeod, D. Ellis, R. Hyde, R. Land, B. Gairdner, C. Hudson, and E. Hume. These are for track and field. R. Bowie and D. Hedberg are co-golf champions. P. Adams is the individual champion for harrier.

Swimmers Smash Records

Wednesday night the Redmen Swim team once again showed that they will be a group to be reckoned with in London as they assaulted the record books with a splash, the likes of which has not been seen or heard around here for a long time.

Once again it was the "Water Wizards" leading the way as Richard Pound and Cameron Grout turned in their best times (unofficial) in EVERY EVENT that they swam. Even with these outstanding showings by the two big guns, the two Canadian records and one Provincial record could not have been set without the stellar performances of the more unpublicized team men such as Christy Mills, Pete Rees, Al MacDougall, and the promising Dave Sherwood.

OUTSTANDING RECORDS SET

The evening started off with the 400 yard freestyle relay. Dave led off followed by Christy. Both turned in times around the 55 second mark. Then Cameron Grout and Richard Pound had their turns. Pound turned in his best ever as he split an unofficial 50 seconds flat. Grout was close to this as he clocked an unofficial 50.3 for his best this winter. The total time for the event was a sensational 3:30.3 to set new team, pool, Provincial, Intercollegiate, and Dominion records. It is interesting to note that the pool record was formerly 3:38.0, while the Canadian record was about 3:38.

Everything after that seemed anti-climactical. The medley relay team, with an outstanding showing in the backstroke by Peter Rees, set a new Provincial record at 400 yards. Here Grout swam 100 yards 'fly in this best time this year. Cameron Grout stopped the clocks in 56.1. Finally, the group cleaved 40 seconds off the 800 yard freestyle relay record as they came through in 8:11.4. London, here we come!

ERRATUM

In yesterday's DAILY an erroneous headline was written for the article concerning the McGill Senior Basketball Team's defeat of the highly rated Sir George squad. The headline read Seniors Edged 50-45 Squad Now In Second. The fact is that McGill EDGED Sir George 50-45!
